THE ROAD HOUSE

This was a house constructed with two fronts; the main entry on one side addressing a major street and the garage and “every day” entry on the opposite side off a less travelled road. The new owners wanted to correct this oddity while expanding the second floor to include a new master bedroom suite and completely overhaul the home’s exterior. The design called for a new large garage facing the opposite yard with the new master suite above. The rear yard was then fully developed in a traditional manner to provide ample visual screening to the street behind. The result is a beautiful family home that fits seamlessly in the neighbourhood.
